Forecast For Northeast England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Tuesday 29 Jun 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Mist and low cloud slowly burning back to the coast.

Today:
A dull and murky start for many with a few spots of light rain or drizzle and extensive fog over the hills. During the morning low cloud will slowly burn back to the coast, with warm sunny spells developing. Maximum temperature 18 deg C (64 deg F).

Tonight:
Mist, fog and low cloud returning inland after dusk becoming widespread after midnight. Most parts dry but coastal drizzle is likely towards dawn. Minimum temperature 5 deg C (41 deg F).

Thursday:
Dull and cloudy at first with fog over the hills. Perhaps the odd spot of drizzly rain. Slowly improving from the west during the morning with some afternoon brightness. Maximum temperature 19 deg C (66 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Dull and cloudy starts, but sunny spells developing. Mainly dry Friday, though showers possible Saturday. Often warm by day inland, but fresher towards the coast. Widespread heavy showers on Sunday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.